

Dear Colleagues,

We find ourselves in a rapidly evolving situation with the COVID-19 pandemic. Emergency physicians are the front line of the health care system during these challenging times. We want to thank you all for your dedication to our communities across Canada and your hard work to keep the public safe and healthy.

You have seen the media releases CAEP has issued to pressure the government to better prepare for this pandemic. CAEP representatives have met with federal ministers to discuss ways Canada can be better prepared. Advocacy efforts will continue as the situation evolves.

It is imperative that our members have access to up-to-date information that is easy to locate and relevant to emergency medicine. CAEP has therefore created a page with resources to help your decision-making as this virus continues to spread across the country. CAEP will continue to update this page as new information and other resources become available. If you have any resources you would like to share, please submit these to Christina Bova (cbova@caep.ca).

The health and safety of our members continue to be the top priority for the CAEP Board of Directors. CAEP will continue to support and advocate for its members during these challenging times. Please continue to share your thoughts and concerns as this pandemic continues to evolve.

Wishing you well in the days and weeks ahead.

The CAEP Board of Directors
